BABY'S SCALP,

Milk Crust, Dandruff, Eczema and all Scalp Humors Cured by Cuticura.

LAST NOVEMBER my little boy, aged three years, fell against the stove while he was running, and cut his head, and right after that, he broke out all over his head, face and left ear. I had a good doctor, Dr. ——, to attend him, but he got worse, and the doctor could not cure him. His whole head, face and left ear were in a fearful state, and he suffered terribly. I caught the disease from him, and it spread all over my face and neck and even got into my eyes. Nobody thought we would ever get better. I felt sure we were disfigured for life. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and procured a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, a box of CUTICURA, and a cake of CUTICURA SOAP, and used them constantly day and night. After using two bottles of RESOLVENT, four boxes of CUTICURA and four cakes of SOAP, we are perfectly cured without a scar. My boy's skin is now fine again.

THE WORST SORE HEAD.

Have been in the drug and medicine business twenty-five years. Have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES since they came West. They lead all others in their line. We could not write nor could you print all we have heard said in favor of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. One year ago the CUTICURA and SOAP cured a little girl in our house of the worst sore head we ever saw, and the RESOLVENT and CUTICURA are now curing a young gentleman of a sore leg, while the physicians are trying to have it amputated. It will save his leg, and perhaps his life. Too much cannot be said in favor of CUTICURA REMEDIES.

Storms and Blizzards Reported from Many Sections.

ADVICE AS TO NATIONAL BANKS.

More About the Postal Service—The President's Message—Dr. Douglass and the Grant Family—Eastern Notes.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Advices to the Associated Press are to the effect that a heavy snow storm prevailed to-day in Northern New York and Northern and Western Pennsylvania. At Binghamton, N. Y., the Pioneer rink was crushed by snow on the roof. An entertainment was to have been held there, and a large number of people were going to the place. About twenty persons were inside at the time, but all escaped. In this city it rained heavily, with occasional sheets of snow.

SEVERAL PEOPLE PERISH IN DAKOTA.

MANDAN, DAK., Nov. 25.—Two children named Meyer were frozen to death ten miles north of here, while looking for lost stock. Two young men, brothers, named Sims, were frozen to death while returning from work.

SANBORN, Dak., Nov. 25.—Mrs. Joseph Hazelting was lost in the blizzard Monday night, and when she was found was so badly frozen that her recovery is doubtful.

TERRIFIC STORM IN NEW JERSEY.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—Rain, accompanied by cyclonic manifestations, swept over the center of Gloucester county, N. J., this afternoon. In the vicinity of Prospect Grove the wind blew with the force of a tornado. The Glassboro accommodation had a narrow escape from being wrecked. Thunder, lightning and hail were terrific. At several points the electrical current was so strong as to set fire to the trees.

STORM IN PENNSYLVANIA.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 25.—It has been snowing and raining here since daylight. On the mountains a sleet storm is raging, and all the wires are down for thirty miles between Derry and Conemaugh, on the Pennsylvania railway. Telegraphic communication has also been interrupted between this city and Washington.

NATIONAL BANKS.

Annual Report of the Comptroller of Currency—A Number of Suggestions.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The annual report of Trenholm, comptroller of the currency, contains suggestions for amendment of the national bank laws in about a dozen instances, including contingent liability of shareholders, requirements as to reserve, limit of loans to individuals, more thorough examination of banks and their protection against unequal state taxation. The specific character of these suggestions is withheld for the present.

Three thousand five hundred and eighty National banks have organized in all, of which 2858 are now in operation. Of these, 174 have been organized during the past year, with a capital of $21,000,000, and circulation of $2,000,000. Twenty-four banks went into voluntary liquidation during the year; one ceased to exist by expiration of its charter, and eight failed. Since the beginning of the system in 1863 only 112 National banks have failed. Of these 68 have paid their creditors in full, and 10 have paid interest besides, 15 in full and 5 in part.

Over 80 per cent. of all national bank stock is held by residents of the state in which the bank is located. More than 80 per cent. is held by natural persons, and 96 per cent. of the number of shareholders are natural persons. The total number of shareholders is 223,000, and the total shares over 7,000,000.

The effect of the reduction of the public debt and the high premium on bonds upon the volume of national bank circulation is very fully illustrated in the report. The contraction in national bank circulation during the year exceeds $56,000,000.

Besides the usual tables showing the condition of the national banks at various dates, the report this year contains an abstract which specifies each item of their resources and liabilities. Banks in several states and territories have their condition stated separately. A large diagram, exhibiting many features of the national banking system and their variations during the past twenty-one years accompanies the report. From this it appears that the aggregate of deposits in the banks has increased from [illegible] in January, 1866, to [illegible] in October, 1886, while loans and discounts have risen from [illegible] to [illegible]. Specie held by national banks in 1866 was [illegible], in October, 1866, it was only $8,000,000, while in July, 1885, it was $177,000,000, and is now $156,000,000.

Trenholm declines to say whether his report contains any specific recommendations in regard to modification of the law making United States bonds a basis of national bank currency, but it is understood at the department that he will present a strong array of facts and figures to show how valuable the system has become to the entire country, and how important it is that it should be made adaptable to the needs of communities in the West and South, where vast natural resources await development by aid of outside capital.

THE POSTAL SERVICE.

Annual Report of the Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Third Assistant Postmaster General Hazen, in his annual report to the postmaster general, refers to the encouraging outlook for the current year, and says there is scarcely a doubt that it will realize still greater improvement in postal revenues. The labor troubles were settled early in the year, and a fair degree of prosperity has attended the business of the country during the past four months, and all indications at the present time look to its continuance, if not to still further improvement. None of the sources of postal revenue have been injured by changes during the present year. The reduction in the rate of postage on second-class matter, and the increase of the unit of weight of first class matter have been in effect since the 1st of July, 1885, and accordingly the revenue will not suffer from these sources.

In comparison of the present with the past fiscal year, the report says that additional revenue may be expected from the extension of the special delivery system, the admission of liquids as mail matter, and the important reduction of the price of stamped envelopes under contracts recently entered into.

For the next fiscal year, ending June 30, 1888, he estimates the deficiency in the revenue, to be supplied out of the general treasury, as [illegible], which is only [illegible] more than the amount charged to the treasury for the year ended June 30, 1886, and $2,177,612 less than for the year ended June 30, 1885. The estimated amounts chargeable to the general treasury for the current and next fiscal years will probably be greatly reduced, both by an increase of the estimated postal revenue and by a decrease of the estimated expenditures.

From tendencies shown it is evident that with a prosperous condition in the business of the country to favorably influence the revenues, and with continued exercise of care in regulating expenditures the postal service will again, at no distant date, become a self-supporting institution.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The Herald's Washington correspondent says of the forthcoming message: The first part of it was sent to the printer ten days ago, and portions of it, as written, has been sent daily ever since, and within three hours it is in type and a proof is sent to the president for his revision. The greater part of it is already in type, and will make about four columns in the Herald.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The World's Washington correspondent says that the secretary of the treasury will urge reduction of tariff taxes in his report, and that the president will indorse the position the secretary takes in his message. It is probable that some measure similar to that of the Hewitt bill of last winter will be recommended by the president to the favorable consideration of congress.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT EXPECTED IT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—World's Washington special: The report of the alleged misdoings of Minister Manning, at the City of Mexico, which has been circulated here to-day, was not received at the state department with any degree of surprise, though it is [illegible] the responsibility for his appointment and the disgrace he had brought upon the service, and particularly upon the secretary [illegible] whose friend he had long been. At the time of [illegible] appointment it was whispered [illegible] that while on the bench in [illegible] he was in the habit of becoming [illegible] and often was unable to hold court [illegible].

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Tribune's Washington [illegible] Secretary Bayard to settle the [illegible] Samoan Islands, has returned [illegible] sewing machines [illegible] this country [illegible] oranges, fruit and salt [illegible].

CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

A LETTER FROM [illegible] CUMMINGS.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 25.—The Journal's Moberly, Mo., special says: The Headlight received to-day a characteristic letter from the alleged Jim Cummings, the notorious express robber. The personal description and the handwriting correspond with those of the man who swindled several persons during the fair here last autumn. The letter is dated Omaha, and was mailed at Council Bluffs. Cummings says he is having a good time, and still has most of the stolen express money.

THE ANARCHISTS WILL NOT HANG DEC. 3.

BLOOMINGTON, Ills., Nov. 25.—At 11 A. M. Judge Scott granted a supersedeas in the anarchists' case. Black and Solomon started at once to Ottawa to have the clerk issue an order, in pursuance to Judge Scott's instructions. The effect of the decision to grant a supersedeas is to stay the execution, set for December 3, at least until the supreme court can pass a decision on the motion for a new trial.

EASTERN NEWS ITEMS.

DR. DOUGLAS PAID $12,000.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—William A. Purrington, attorney for Col. Grant, states that Dr. Douglas has received $12,000 from the Grant estate, $7000 being for services rendered, and $5000 being the special sum the general asked Mrs. Grant to pay him out of the profits of his memoirs. He said that these sums were not paid out of the first check for profits on the general's book, because the demands upon her, including payments to several persons who had suffered by the failure of Grant & Ward, were so great that the doctor could not well be paid then; but in a short time after the proceeds of the second were received, Mrs. Grant sent the doctor the full amount, although under no legal obligations to pay the $5000 requested by the general. The attorney also says that Col. Grant has declined to receive [illegible] which the general requested Mrs. Grant to give him for his constant attendance and service in preparing the Memoirs.

THE DEATH OF FRANCIS PALMS.

DETROIT, Nov. 25.—Francis Palms, the richest man in Michigan, who died suddenly this morning at the age of [illegible], was born at Antwerp, Belgium. His father was a [illegible] and had contracts to furnish the armies of the first Napoleon with provender during the Napoleonic wars. The family stood high at court, and was swept down with the fall of the empire. The family emigrated to this country in 1832, and settled in Detroit. It is said of Mr. Palms that he never owed a dollar in his life, always paying cash down. He was twice married, and had one son by his first wife, and a daughter, who presides over his home, by the second marriage, having resided [illegible]. It was this daughter, Miss Clotilde Palms, on whom Senator Jones of Florida forced his attentions so long and caused the young lady so much unpleasant notoriety. She and a son by the first wife are to inherit all the property.

GONE OVER TO THE K. OF L.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 25.—At a meeting of the Pittsburg branch of the Miners' association at Banksville, Pennsylvania, last night, President Costello, Vice President Callagher, Treasurer Taylor and Trustees Stobbie, Alsop and Carpes tendered their resignations, in order that they might join the Knights of Labor. This action may result in adding 3000 members to the latter order, but prominent members of the Miners' association state that the old organization will continue in existence, and that State President Harris will be in the city in a few days to reorganize the association and elect new officers. The retiring officers will act as organizers for the K. of L.

WANT LAND IN SEVERALTY.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 25.—The Jicarilla Indians having expressed a desire to leave their reservation and take up land in severalty, Gen. Miles, who is now in Washington, has agreed to present their case to the president, with a recommendation that the wish of the tribe be granted, and they be allowed to settle in the Rio Grande valley near the pueblo of San Ildefonso, where they are now forming a colony. Gen. Grierson, who has visited them, thinks they are in earnest in their desire to settle down to farm life, as they have refused government rations he has offered them, and say they can depend upon themselves.

RAN INTO A FREIGHT TRAIN.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 25.—The through express train on the Cleveland & Pittsburg railway, which left this city at 11:25 last night, ran into a freight train at Conway's station, twenty-five miles from Pittsburg, on the Fort Wayne road, shortly after midnight, derailing the caboose and two freight cars and the engine of the express train. Fireman Harry Barkshaw of Cleveland was hurled from the cab and killed outright. None of the passengers were injured. The freight train had stopped to take a supply of water when the express crashed into it.

SOMEWHAT SENSATIONAL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—John W. Young, Mormon leader, son of Brigham, is here. He is given credit for having originated a scheme for selling all the Mormon possessions in Utah and moving to Mexico. It has been denied that the Mormons contemplate any such movement. It is natural that they should desire to keep it secret. It was only a day or two since that a prominent capitalist of this city told a reporter that he had been approached on the subject of forming a syndicate to buy out the Mormons, to let them get away to Mexico.

FAILURE IN MISSISSIPPI.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 25.—A special to the Picayune says: The failure of E. C. Hudson & Co., one of the largest commercial firms at Brandon, Miss., is reported. No statement of their assets or liabilities has been made public.

DEATH OF ERASTUS BROOKS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Erastus Brooks, formerly general manager of the associated press, and part proprietor of the Mail and Express, died this morning at 8:30 o'clock at his home on Staten Island.

DISASTROUS EXPLOSION.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The boiler of the tug Sunbeam, lying near her pier on East river, exploded this afternoon. The owner and three men on board were blown up and were killed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Arrived, Nevada and Spain, from Liverpool.

THE FIRE RECORD.

DISASTROUS FIRE AT CHEYENNE.

CHEYENNE, Nov. 25.—The Union Pacific hotel, leased by the Pacific hotel company, burned this afternoon. The building was partially and the stock and furniture totally destroyed. Loss on building and furniture, $25,000, partly insured. Fire caught in the third story, from a defective flue. A man named McElroy, a Union Pacific employe, was killed by a falling porch, and several firemen were severely injured.

PANIC IN A HOTEL.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—The Continental hotel was found to be on fire early this morning in six different rooms. Fire Marshal Draines says the fire was undoubtedly an incendiary's work. The hotel has 100 guest rooms, and the guests were thoroughly panic stricken, rushing out into the street in their night clothing. The damage on the building was only slight.

LIBERTY HAS A NARROW ESCAPE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The heavy cloth curtain which, during the day time, covers the electric light lenses on the statue of Liberty, caught fire Monday night and fell on the light wood work of the staircase in the interior of the statue. It was only by the hardest work that a bad fire was avoided and the great statue saved from ruin.

CALIFORNIA.

THE EXTRA DAY'S RACES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—The extra day's racing of the Blood Horse association at Oakland park to-day brought out a fair attendance. The weather was fine and the track fast.

First race, five-eighths mile—Won by Bertie B by a length, Minnie R. second, Atchison third; time, 1:03¼.

Second race, three-quarters mile—Robson led all the way and won easily, Leap Year second, Gardner third; time, 1:16.

Third race, heats, mile and a sixteenth—This was a splendid race and stubbornly contested. Miss Courtney won the first heat, Argo the second heat, and Binnette the third and fourth heats; best time, 1:48¾.

Fourth race, seven-eighths mile—Bertie won easily, Newton second, Cleveland third; time, 1:27½.

TWO DEPUTY SHERIFFS KILLED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—The Chronicle's Albuquerque special says: Startling rumors were circulated on the streets at noon to-day to the effect that Juan Duran and Bill Priest, deputy sheriffs detailed to follow and bring in, dead or alive, the murderer of John Johnsen, had come up with their man and both killed. The report was brought in by two Mexicans from the mountains. A posse is scouring the country, and the town is considerably excited. Should the report be true, Charles Ross, the other desperado implicated in last Saturday night's horrible tragedy, and who was captured, and is in jail, will be summarily dealt with. Marshal McGuire's condition has changed for the worse and it is now feared that the wounds inflicted by the assassins will terminate fatally.

The Reichstag Opened and the Emperor's Speech Read.

THE PROPOSED ARMY INCREASE.

Irish Landlords Selling to Their Tenants—John Bright and Free Trade—The Ministerial Crisis in France—Etc.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—The reichstag was opened to-day by Herr von Boetticher, minister of the interior, who read the speech from the throne, in which the emperor says:

"The object of the policy of the empire, which enjoys peaceful relations with all the states, is to exert in favor of the maintenance of concord among all the powers the influence which accrues to Germany from her love of peace, from the universal confidence reposed in the empire, owing to the fact that Germany is not concerned in pending questions, and from the emperor's close friendship with two neighboring courts."

The emperor's speech announces that a measure will be introduced to increase the effective strength of the German army, which, he says, is justified by the increasing armies of neighboring states. This measure, he says, is indispensable to German security. The recruits required will be raised by increasing the matriculatory contributions and applying them to the public credit.

The emperor also mentions a measure to extend the workmen's accident insurance.

The government abandons taxation reform until the people shall more clearly recognize its necessity.

The text of that part of the emperor's speech relating to the septennate bill is as follows: "By the law of May 6, 1880, the peace effective was fixed until March 31, 1888. Our military system therefore requires a renewing of a legal basis. The army is a guarantee of lasting protection and of the blessings of peace. Although the policy of the empire is always pacific, Germany, in view of the developments in the military establishments of neighboring states, cannot longer defer increasing her defensive force, especially the peace effective. A bill, therefore, will be submitted providing for an increase, to take effect from the beginning of the new financial year. The emperor, in accord with the federal governments, feels confident that the necessity for the demand, which is indispensable in the interests of national security, will be recognized with full determination by the whole German people and their representatives."

The pacific tone of the speech has strengthened the bourse. There was large buying to-day of Austrian, Russian and Hungarian securities. It is expected that the septennate bill, when presented to the reichstag, will be immediately referred to a commission of twenty-one members, thus postponing critical debate on the measure until January.

EFFECT OF THE BILL.

The septennate bill fixes the peace effectiveness of the army until 1895 at [illegible] men, not including single year volunteers. The infantry will consist of 534 battalions, the cavalry of 465 squadrons, the field artillery of 364 batteries, foot artillery of 31 battalions, the pioneers of 19 battalions, the military train of 18 battalions. There will be two divisional and four infantry brigade staffs, five regiments and fifteen battalions of infantry, and one battalion of Jaegers. To the field artillery will be added two sectional staffs, to the railway corps three battalion staffs and nine companies, and to the transport corps fourteen companies. The permanent expenditure of the army is placed at [illegible],000,000 marks, and the special and non-recurring expenditure at 24,000,000 marks.

The preamble of the bill dwells on the danger besetting Germany in the large increase of the French forces, and says postponement of strengthening the German army might be attended with grave results. It is urged that the importance of increasing the service is absolutely imperative, because Germany is now obliged to make compensation for numerical differences by high training.

ENGLAND.

SELLING TO IRISH TENANTS.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The London City companies have resolved to sell their lands in the north of Ireland, on easy terms to tenants. The Salters company will transfer 25,000 acres at the purchase price, under the terms of the Ashbourne act. The Fishmongers company will transfer 20,500 acres at a yearly rental of £9,[illegible]. They offer to sell to tenants at twenty years' purchase on government valuation, the tenants paying annually 4½ per cent. under the present rental. GEN. BULLER CHANGES HIS VIEWS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The Tribune's special this morning contains an important piece of news in regard to Irish affairs. It is in effect that Gen. Buller, who went to Kerry to see that the laws were rigidly enforced in behalf of the landlords, has been converted to a belief in the justness of the Irish peasants' demand to be relieved from oppression, and what is more, that he has frankly told his convictions to Lord Salisbury and the royal commissioners, who are now investigating the state of Ireland with the utmost secrecy.

JOHN BRIGHT AND FREE TRADE.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—John Bright, in a letter approving the erection of a statue of Cobden at Stockport, denies that free trade is imperiled. He continues: "An American recently asked me if it would be impossible to return to protection in England. I replied, 'It is not impossible, but it will not come until the United States restores slavery.'"

Viner's colt Gloriation third. There were nine starters.

NEWS ITEMS FROM VICTORIA.

VICTORIA, Nov. 25.—The Barnard Castle lies in the same position, and sustained no damage from the heavy gale of Wednesday. Permission has been granted by the Dominion government to allow the Whitelaw wrecking apparatus in duty free, and the underwriters will attempt to float her again.

Notices of application for charters have been given for several railway schemes, two of which are to connect the Canadian Pacific with the boundary line between British Columbia and Idaho, and by an American line with the Northern Pacific.

W. Duncan, who is chief man among the Metlakatla Indians, who have interfered with the government survey of reserves, has proceeded to Washington to ask from the United States government a grant of Alaska land, in order to move the Indians there. They live in houses, have an extensive salmon cannery, sawmill, etc., and are regarded as the most civilized Indians on the coast, numbers of them being well educated. The dispute is principally about two acres. The presence thereon of an Episcopal bishop is distasteful to the Indian community. The bishop is bound to stay, and trouble has resulted in consequence. In order that they may be able to govern their community without interference of the bishop they now propose to move the church, cannery, mill and houses to Alaska, if the United States government favors the scheme.

THE TELEGRAPH INJUNCTION SUIT.

Olympia Partisan, Nov. 20.

P. P. Telegraph Cable company vs. Northern Pacific Railroad company.

Judge Hoyt, on the 19th inst., in the above case decided to permit the telegraph company, pending the litigation, to proceed with the construction of its telegraph line on the right of way of the Northern Pacific Railroad company upon the execution and filing in court of a bond in the sum of $20,000 to indemnify the Northern Pacific railroad for damages it may sustain. The judge said that he had great doubts as to the construction of sections 5 and 11 of the railroad company's charter; that section 5 authorized the government to use the railroad right of way for telegraphic and transportation purposes upon compensating the railroad company therefor; that the government could not confer upon the telegraph company greater rights than the government itself possessed; that the Postal Telegraph company in its complaint does not offer compensation for the land it is attempting to appropriate, the injuries and damages it may cause the railroad company, but that the public is interested in the construction of the line and the bond will amply protect the railroad company. So the court permitted the telegraph company to proceed with its construction, if it desired to take the chances after filing the bond. The question thus passed upon by Judge Hoyt has been several times before the courts and uniformly decided that the telegraph company could not appropriate any part of the land or right of way of the railroad company without compensation.

Judge Drummond, in a case cited before Judge Hoyt in Bissell, p. 156, in reference to a telegraph line claiming the right of way under the act of congress of July 24, 1866, said: "The right to construct a telegraph line implies the possession, control and use of real property, and in this case the possession, control and use of the right of way of the defendant." * * * The railroad company has the exclusive right to each and every part of its right of way, and that is a right of way which cannot be taken without compensation." * * * "I think it clear that congress, by the act of July 24, 1866, did not intend to confer on telegraph lines the right contended for. And granting that such was the intention, it is beyond the authority of congress to deprive the defendant of its right of property without providing compensation. The act of congress in question does not contain any such provision." * * * "And I am of the opinion that the telegraph company has no right to establish its line upon defendant's right of way without making compensation therefor."

Judge Drummond also said in the same case: "The right to construct a telegraph line would imply to construct another railroad, or to add indefinitely to the number of telegraph lines that might be placed over the right of way, and the railroad company, if plaintiff's contention is well founded, may be substantially deprived of any beneficial use of its right of way." The questions involved in this case are of great importance to railroad and telegraph companies, and the case will probably go to the supreme court, no matter which way it is decided in the district court.

THE OWNERSHIP OF LAND.

Edward Atkinson in Work and Wages.

Once all men were tramps. The Indians used to own all the land in common. They didn't sow much and they didn't reap much. They lived on game, fish and clams, but there wasn't enough to go round, and then one said to the others, I have as good a right as you to what there is, and he tried to grab it. The other Indians killed him. That is the way we all began. The white men, who were our grandfathers, lived in the same way in Europe, but that way didn't work well, and the white men gave it up before the Indians, who haven't given it up yet. What did they do next? They saw that all their food came out of the land, and that if they did not fence in the land somewhere and plant it, there would not be enough food to go round. Game was getting scarce. A tribe or a family fenced in a piece and said to the rest 'This is ours.' Nobody objected just then, because there was more land than folks. After the tribe had taken the land a part of them planted it, and the rest kept up the fences, that is to say, they stayed round the outside and kept the tramps off. Next year the tribe that had fenced in or set apart some of the land had plenty of food, and they had a lot of time to spare, so they went to work making better clothes and building better houses; the next year they were a great deal stronger, because they had been better fed and better clothed and better housed. The more they fenced in and used the land the more food there was for themselves and for others.

The tramps outside had a great deal more land, they also had all the game there was and all the time there was, but they said these fellows inside the fence have taken our land, but as we have worked just as hard outside as they have, they ought to share even; we have just as much right to some of their crops, and if they won't give them to us let's go and take them—let's share even. That is just what the tramps say now, but they don't get it, because the men inside the fence have the most sense and the most muscle, the best tools and the best guns, and they know how to use them. The tramps were licked, and they began to grumble, as they do now. They said to the men inside the fence: 'You have no right to that land; we want some of it.' The men inside said: 'There is land enough outside, why don't you fence in some out there?' The tramps said: "We want to stay here." Then, said the men inside the fence: 'Stay, if you want to, and swap with us—there will be enough for all of us if we swap. We will work the land, which is good for nothing unless it is worked, but we can't all work on this land, let's swap work on land for some other kind of work.' 'But where shall I stay?' said the tramp. 'We can't all live in the woods.' 'No,' said the man inside the fence, 'we have more food than we can eat, more timber than we can use, more iron than we want; you can come in and work up these things, and we will let you have a part, we will swap grain and meat and timber and iron, which we have saved from our own work and cannot use ourselves, for your work.' The tramps agreed. Where was the thief? Both had more than they had before. Which one gained the most?"

TO OVERCOME RIVER RAPIDS.

Astorian, Nov. 25.

W. A. Grondahl, a Portland civil engineer, has an invention for carrying a vessel past rapids, etc., in the Columbia river, that appears to be of a practical nature, and if put to the test capable of doing what it is intended to do.

The idea is to have a track built after the fashion of an ordinary railroad track running down some distance into the water. Any ordinary river steamer is to be provided with six wheels, three on each side two close together near the bow, and one well back about parallel with the axle of the stern wheel, the latter two (one on each side) to furnish the motive power, and the other two to guide the boat on the rails.

The boat is to be rigged with a Howe truss on each side, nearly its full length. The two hind wheels, as they may be called, would revolve simultaneously with the wheel revolving in the water, and [illegible] the boat was in the [illegible] entering the submerged track, the moment the driving-wheel reached out of the water these two hind wheels would take hold of the rails and begin to revolve, the stern wheel still revolving, though out of the water. The forward wheels would guide the boat, and the same motive power that sent the boat through the water would propel it up the track. [illegible] the boat's power could follow. The truss would strengthen and support the boat [illegible] the water. It seems to be simple and [illegible].

A model [illegible] is at the Astorian office, [illegible] track, etc., complete, and can be seen [illegible] in this city. Something [illegible] necessity on the upper Columbia, and it looks as though Mr. Grondahl [illegible].

PUT IN ALL THE CHAPTERS.

PORTLAND, Nov. 25.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

In your paper of this morning you seem to lament that certain phases of the proceedings in [illegible] children have never been [illegible]. Several years ago these points were [illegible] upon the Greene and [illegible] the then [illegible] declared to [illegible] by [illegible] and with volumes [illegible] in that case that the [illegible] was [illegible] in the same [illegible] of court on [illegible] in the pleadings, which [illegible] or suggested by the attorneys upon either side in the case, and had never been previously suggested by the court, though a second argument of the case was had in the same court by the court's order.

On appeal to the supreme court the pretense upon which the case had been thrown out by the lower court was deemed so trivial that it was never mentioned by the court or attorneys upon either side. Yours, etc.,

OBSERVER.

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND, FRIDAY, NOV. 26, 1886.

LAME AND IMPOTENT CONCLUSION!

The president's letter refusing to reinstate District Attorney Stone of Pennsylvania, suspended for "pernicious activity" at the same time District Attorney Benton of Missouri was suspended for precisely the same cause, makes the civil service policy of the administration, if it can be called a "policy," a greater farce than ever. The Missouri man is a democrat, the Pennsylvania man a republican. Reinstatement of the former and refusal to reinstate the latter, with the reasons given in both cases, are facts that signalize the collapse of the administration's efforts to promote and maintain the "reform" which it so ostentatiously announced.

The president's letter about Stone we take to be the most peculiar document that ever emanated from the White house. Epitomized, it is just this: An official may deliver political speeches if he speaks for the party of the administration and for the administration itself; but if he speaks against them, that is, if he speaks for the opposition party, he will not be permitted to hold office.

This, it must be admitted, is perfectly intelligible, and no doubt it will be approved by a very great many people; but it can't strut about under the mask of civil service reform. "It's a very pretty poem you have given us, Mr. Pope," said Bentley when the poet sent the great scholar a copy of his translation of the Iliad; "but," added Bentley, "you mustn't call it Homer."

At last a definition of civil service reform has been evolved. It signifies, to make speeches in praise of the administration and in support of the administration's party. Conversely, it is a violation of the principles of civil service reform to make speeches for the party that opposes the administration. Bah! Mr. Cleveland. For a man of your weight you are trying to walk a very narrow and very weak plank. "Tread softly and circumspectly as you will in this funambulatory and narrow path," as Sir Thomas Browne saith, you will not be able to walk far, but will soon plump into the abyss, balancing-pole and all.

A DEPLORABLE FACT.

A letter published to-day, entitled "Put in All the Chapters," explains certain things about the action of the courts in relation to the Balch swindle of which THE OREGONIAN had not special knowledge. It knew, indeed, that the courts had in some way managed to avoid hearing and passing on the case upon its merits, presumably out of tenderness to the principal perpetrator of the great fraud, or more probably through fear of his political power and the displeasure of his "gang;" but it had not the exact facts on this point before it. These are now supplied by one who is perfectly conversant with them.

One of the most deplorable features of a case like this is presented in the fact it discloses that courts and juries, composed as they are of men anxious not to place themselves, their private business and their political hopes under the ban of an unscrupulous tyranny that has a gang of corrupt political henchmen at its back; that lawyers who have a practice at the bar which they fear will be wrecked or injured through the methods which it is corrupt tyranny may employ in "working" courts, witnesses and juries against them; that private citizens who fear to incur the "regent's" displeasure, lest they may be made to suffer in some way through him or his minions;—one of the most deplorable things, we say, brought out in a case like this, is found in its revelation of the fact that so many persons cower before these and other various forms of an active and unscrupulous scoundrelism, which they fear may bring its secret resources of villainy to bear against them in public and even in private life.

Here too may now be stated another fact not mentioned in the general review of the Balch case, already published. It is now well known—better known than it was prior to our last June election—that this same Balch case was in that election as a corrupting element. They who were interested in preventing an investigation of the original fraud made suppression of it an issue in the election of supreme judge; and it was to their action, in no small degree, that the defeat of Judge Waldo was due. At this point the action of Jo Simon may also be recalled; and this and that put together.

Simon, let us remark, still holds for Mitchell the chairmanship of the republican state central committee.

TESTIMONY AS TO PROHIBITION.

The Muscatine (Ia.) correspondent of the New York Evening Post writes that in Des Moines, Iowa City, Cedar Rapids and the large river towns of Dubuque, Clinton, Davenport, Muscatine, Burlington, Keokuk, Sioux City and Council Bluffs the prohibitory law is practically a dead letter. Liquor is sold openly and fearlessly, without any effort at concealment. We quote:

> The bar is in plain sight, and men and boys can, at any time, and by anybody, be seen there imbibing. What is true of this place is also equally true of the thirty-five other similar places in this community; and this not because efforts have not been made to enforce the law. There exists, and has for some time existed, a Muscatine County Temperance alliance, and by it has been raised and expended at least $5000 to prosecute the liquor dealers. Attorneys have been employed, arrests made, suits tried, and yet, somehow, the end of it all has been failure.

Miss Kate Field, who has recently returned from a lecture tour in Iowa, confirms these statements, and adds that there was no lack of rum holes in Iowa; that the only effect of prohibition was to cause an exceedingly cheap and nasty quality of liquor to be sold; that when her brandy flask was empty, which she carries for sickness, that she was unable to get it replenished, save with the vilest stuff she ever tasted. Prohibition is making the druggists of Kansas millionaires. The statute makes the purchaser of liquor the sole judge of its necessity, and relieves him of the trouble of obtaining a physician's prescription. The Dodge City Free Press recently published a table giving a full list of the purposes for which liquor was sold in that county during the month of June last. Three hundred and fifteen reasons were given for wanting liquor, and among the pretexts were "bilious headache, broken arm, spinal complaint, bathing, chronic diarrhœa, chronic constipation, congestion of the lungs, dropsy and heart disease, dry stomach, epilepsy, gravel and inflammation of the kidneys." Men, in unusual numbers, wanted whisky for their wives, their children, for sick babies, for sick cows, mules, colts and horses. One needed liquor "to use in experimenting with seeds," and yet only one person wanted it for "snake bite." "Sick headache" and "indigestion of the lungs" were also among the frequent calls. Gov. Ormsbee, of Vermont, in his recent inaugural message, says "the fact that the present prohibitory law of the state is in many places openly violated and flagrantly disregarded, is an open secret, and that in some instances, too numerous to be contemplated without concern, those upon whom has been or is imposed the sworn duty of its faithful execution are its violators, and are blind or indifferent to its violation by others, is also but too well known." The Montpelier Argus comments as follows:

> As now enforced, prohibition amounts to free license. Everybody sells liquor that chooses. Bars, open or private, are found in all the hotels of the state, with few exceptions. It is sold on almost every corner of our streets. The person who wants liquor has no difficulty in finding it. Occasionally the seller of liquor is fined, but it is so seldom that he pursues his business with comparative immunity, so that the law, so far as prohibiting the traffic, remedying or abating the evils of intemperance, is a failure. It is next to impossible now to get a conviction for more than a first offense under the prohibitory law, when a second offense means imprisonment, and hypocrisy and perjury have become so prevalent that it is common scandal which it is to be feared the proposed laws would only increase. It seems clear that the present liquor statutes are not enforced because the people do not want them enforced, and if this be true the foolishness of enacting statutes still more stringent is apparent. When the penalty is made hanging or imprisonment for life for the first offense of violating the liquor law, "without benefit of clergy," it is likely that the good sense of the people will see the folly of enacting prohibitory rather than restrictive and regulatory sumptuary laws.

The more legal clamps are applied the lamer the law walks with the people. That is the view taken of the workings of prohibition by the Rev. Leonard W. Bacon, a Congregational clergyman of Connecticut, who contributes to the November Forum a scathing criticism of the fundamental doctrines of the prohibitionists and the workings of the system wherever it has been established. From Maine and Vermont, where prohibition has been on the statute books for more than thirty years, to Kansas and Iowa, where it is of recent birth, come the same story of a statute whose history is a sermon on the inefficiency of good intentions when they have no backing of wisdom.

LINCOLN AND THANKSGIVING.

Edward Winslow thus describes the first New England Thanksgiving under Gov. Bradford:

> Our harvest being gotten in, our governor (William Bradford) sent four men on fowling, so that we might, after a special manner, rejoice together after we had gathered the fruit of our labors. They four in one day killed as much fowl as, with a little help beside, served the company almost a week. At which time, amongst other recreation, we exercised our arms, many of the Indians coming amongst us, and among the rest their greatest king Massasoyt, with some ninety men, whom for three days we entertained and feasted; and they went out and killed five deer, which they brought to the plantation and bestowed on our governor and upon the captain, Myles Standish, and others.

Another Thanksgiving day was observed in 1689 for the accession of William and Mary, and in the Massachusetts colony from its first settlement until the Revolution, thanksgivings of some sort were of annual occurrence.

Thanksgiving days mark the history of Connecticut at intervals from 1639 to 1716, after which date fast-days and days of thanksgiving were regularly observed there and in Rhode Island, which observed the days appointed by Massachusetts. The first Thanksgiving day in New York was observed in 1641 and was called forth by a victory of the colonists over a large body of Indians.

The early records of New Jersey and Virginia show small observance of thanksgiving days before the Revolution. Bernard, the royal governor of the Massachusetts colony, was the first to issue a Thanksgiving proclamation in printed form, November 4, 1767. During the struggle for independence a day of thanksgiving was annually ordered by congress, but upon the cessation of hostilities the observance was remanded to the respective states. In 1784, however, the "Peace Thanksgiving" was recommended by congress, and in 1789 President Washington appointed Thursday, the 26th of November, a day of thanksgiving for the adoption of the constitution, and from this time the last Thursday in November has been generally the orthodox date for Thanksgiving. In 1795 the suppression of the whisky insurrection called forth a second Thanksgiving proclamation from our first president. In April, 1815, President Madison recommended a special day of thanksgiving on the successful termination of the war of 1812, and from that time until the great war for the Union the civil recognition of the day was confined to New England. To that grand American gentleman, President Lincoln, whose homespun wisdom and paternal tenderness is expressed in his popular title of "Father Abraham," do we owe the recognition of Thanksgiving as a national festival. Lincoln did not have many legitimate occasions for Thanksgiving during his first two years of rule. November, 1861, was hardly a month of congratulation, for it found the Union and Confederate armies leaning on their arms waiting for winter to waste itself and for spring to come with grass sure to be made rosy red by the blood of the brave of both sides to this gigantic quarrel. The Union arms were successful without any serious break from Fort Donelson in February, 1862, to Shiloh and New Orleans. For this flash of splendid victory April 10, 1862, Lincoln issued a proclamation asking the people to give thanks and "to implore spiritual consolation for those who had been brought into affliction by the calamities of civil war." The great disasters that befell the Union arms during the remaining months of 1862, found Lincoln, in April, 1863, proclaiming not a Thanksgiving, but a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer. McClellan rolled back from Richmond, Pope driven within the defences of Washington, Buell beaten at Perryville, Grant repulsed in his initial movement on Vicksburg, the drawn battle of Antietam, our horrible defeat at Fredericksburg, Rosecrans's barren victory at Stone river, Hooker's fearful repulse at Chancellorsville, did not furnish President Lincoln with a pretext for Thanksgiving, but when the battle season of 1863 was over Gettysburg, and Vicksburg gave Lincoln clear justification for thanksgiving and he issued a proclamation October 3, 1863, appointing Thursday, November 26, 1863, recommending unanimous observance of the day. The great victory of Chattanooga, won by Grant over Bragg, November 25, made this holiday a glorious thanksgiving, and the year closed in a burst of sunshine that we had not seen since Fort Donaldson. The following is a passage from this famous proclamation:

> No human counsel hath devised, nor hath any mortal hand worked out, these great things. They are the gracious gifts of the most high God, who, while dealing with us in anger for our sins, hath nevertheless remembered mercy.
> It has seemed to me fit and proper that they should be solemnly, reverently and gratefully acknowledged as with one heart and voice by the whole American people. I do therefore invite my fellow citizens in every part of the United States, and also those who are at sea, and those who are sojourning in foreign lands, to set apart and observe the last Thursday of November as a day of thanksgiving and prayer to our beneficent Father, who dwelleth in the heavens. And I recommend to them that, while offering up the ascriptions justly due to him for such singular deliverances and blessings, they do also, with humble penitence for our national perverseness and disobedience, commend to his tender care all those who have become widows, orphans, mourners or sufferers in the lamentable civil strife in which we are unavoidably engaged, and reverently implore the interposition of the Almighty hand to heal the wounds of the nation and to restore it, as soon as may be consistent with the Divine purposes, to the full enjoyment of peace, harmony, tranquillity and union.

This proclamation was received with small favor by Governor Seymour, of New York, who appointed Thanksgiving day for a different date, so that the Empire state had two Thanksgivings that year, at both of which the loyal people prayed heartily for their deliverance from the lukewarm patriotism of their obstructive executive. The next year, 1864, while we had occasionally a severe rebuff it was generally "Thanksgiving" weather and November 24, 1864, Lincoln proclaimed a day of thanksgiving for the capture of Atlanta and Sheridan's brilliant victories in "the valley." This year for the first time there were special services in the Catholic church. In April, 1865, just as Lincoln was ready to summon the people to general thanksgiving for victory, long deferred but at last completely won by Grant, the great president was removed by the hand of murder, leaving a nation dissolved in tears, just when every eye was looking expectantly to see him lead the people in doffing his hat reverently to the flag and making the welkin ring with a glad cheer for its final rescue and restoration. And among the inspiring memories that are associated with Thanksgiving will always remain that of Lincoln, whose first example has enlarged the day from a provincial New England custom to a holiday of national observance throughout the Union, the Southern states, and notably Virginia observing it as faithfully as Christmas.

The vote of Washington territory in the recent election was a little less than 48,000. It is estimated that between one-third and one-fourth of the whole number was cast by women. The gain of the whole vote over the whole vote cast two years ago was just about 5700.

Commenting upon the indifferent success achieved by the noisy Salvation army in this country, the New York Tribune reasonably concludes that "the American people do not take kindly to religious buffoonery."

Official reports prove that the United States regular army has just eleven men to each officer. And the New York World remarks, "Where the men are is a great mystery."

CHATTANOOGA.

Yesterday was the anniversary of Grant's great victory of Chattanooga over the Confederates under Bragg. During the Vicksburg campaign Grant urged the advance of Rosecrans against Bragg in Tennessee, but Rosecrans would not stir. After the Vicksburg campaign Grant urged an immediate advance on Mobile, a movement that would have relieved Rosecrans, who was at last about to set his troops in motion, from undue pressure. Halleck refused to accept Grant's advice and the result was that Lee showed his contempt for Meade by detaching 23,000 men, under Longstreet, from the army of Northern Virginia and sending them to Bragg, who, thus strongly reinforced, fell upon Rosecrans and terribly defeated him at Chickamauga, September 20, 1863.

If some able soldier like Grant had been in command this would not have happened, for he would have moved all the armies East and West at one time, and Lee would have had his hands too full to spare Longstreet. The defeat of Rosecrans secured from the government that consideration for Grant's sound strategic advice, which it ought to have received months before, when it was neglected for Halleck's disastrous policy of dispersion. Twenty thousand men under Hooker, the Eleventh and Twelfth corps, were hurried by rail from the East to Bridgeport, Ala., on the Tennessee; Rosecrans was relieved and Grant placed in supreme command of the armies of the Ohio, the Cumberland and the Tennessee. Grant arrived at Chattanooga the night of October 23, 1863. During the thirty days that had elapsed since his defeat of Chickamauga, Rosecrans had done nothing but stare his fate in the face, in utter despair of averting it. He had allowed Bragg to cut off his communication with his base of supplies at Bridgeport, both by rail and river. He had lost 10,000 mules and artillery horses from starvation; the troops were reduced to quarter rations; retreat was impossible through the mountains, except by the abandonment of artillery, trains and baggage of every sort. Gen. Wm. F. Smith, the chief engineer of the army, had matured a plan for the recapture of Lookout valley and the re-establishment of rail, steamboat and wagon communication with Bridgeport; but Rosecrans was so dazed by his defeat and so despairing of the situation that he had not nerve enough to order the plan of Smith into instant execution. Grant in his "Memoirs" says Rosecrans had many excellent ideas, and the marvel was that he had not executed them. As soon as Grant arrived he at once ordered Smith's plan carried into effect. Hooker was ordered to cross the Tennessee at Bridgeport and to march to Wauhatchie, at the lower end of Lookout valley. Smith, with 1800 picked men, under command of Gen. Hazen, floated down the Tennessee in pontoons, under the cover of darkness, by the enemy's pickets, landed at Brown's ferry October 27, seized the heights, fortified them, and laid a bridge in a short time. Hooker's troops came into the valley the next day and opened communication with Smith. The enemy had thus been surprised, the blockade of the river was broken, and a division of Longstreet's corps made an assault on Hooker the night of the 28th, to regain the lost advantage, but was repulsed. Thus four days after Grant's arrival he had water communication with his base of supplies firmly under control, his starving army was soon bountifully supplied, and he only waited the arrival of Sherman, who, with 25,000 veterans, was approaching by the way of Decatur and Stevenson, Ala.

And now Bragg, who had lost his grip on our communications by an inexcusable surprise, was guilty of another frightful blunder. He detached Longstreet with 20,000 men to drive Burnside from East Tennessee. Sherman arrived the 20th of November with his advance, but the terrible roads and the rise in the streams delayed his march, so that all his troops were not in position until the 23d. Grant's plan was to attack the enemy on both flanks at the same time, and the moment Bragg weakened his center to assault it with the army of the Cumberland, which, 30,000 strong, formed the center of our line. On the afternoon of the 23d his center moved forward, captured and entrenched an outlying ridge parallel to the enemy's main line, which extended along Missionary Ridge across the valley to Lookout Mountain. On the 24th Sherman crossed the river with his troops and captured the northern end of Missionary Ridge, while Hooker, the same day, moved on Lookout Mountain, and by dark had driven the enemy from position. Thus, by the night of the 24th, Grant had turned both flanks of Bragg's army. His left, under Sherman, had firm possession of the end of Missionary Ridge, threatening the enemy's rear, while his right, under Hooker, menaced the enemy from the captured heights of Lookout. The decisive battle was fought the next day, the 25th. Sherman was the hammer-head of Grant's assault. From sunrise to the middle of the afternoon Sherman so furiously and incessantly assaulted the Confederate right that Bragg was obliged to mass the bulk of his forces to save his right flank and rear. Hooker, meantime, had begun to crowd the enemy's left. Grant saw the enemy's troops pouring along the crest to repulse Sherman, and at 3:30 P. M. he ordered Thomas to attack Bragg's weakened center with the Army of the Cumberland. The rifle pits were carried like a flash, and then, without orders, and, in fact, in despite of orders, the men, with what has been called "a wild, unaccountable impulse, originating in the native sagacity of men and officers alike," rushed for the enemy's main line, which, eight hundred feet above, stood pouring forth a deadly fire of musketry and artillery. They reached the crest; the enemy were seized with an unusual panic and were swept from the crest like chaff before a whirlwind. Sheridan was the hero of this charge, his division losing nearly half its number in killed and wounded. Bragg was beaten with a loss of not less than 10,000 men, for in prisoners alone he lost 6142, and forty of his cannon were taken. Grant lost 5800 in killed and wounded, but he had badly beaten Bragg and had saved Burnside at Knoxville, who would have surrendered his whole force to Longstreet before another week. Gen. Meigs, a West Point soldier, who saw this battle, described it as superior in brilliant tactical skill and energetic execution to any engagement of the war up to that date. The simultaneous pressure on both flanks of Bragg the 24th; the vigorous assault on the Confederate right compelling Bragg to detach from his center; the instant assault on the weak center, were combined with a precision and executed with an energy and promptitude worthy of Napoleon at Austerlitz. The man who thinks Grant was not a fine tactician has not read the history of the battle of Chattanooga, which is included among the tactical studies to-day at West Point, as are Sheridan's victories of Winchester and Five Forks.

Grant's victorious campaign of Corinth in October, 1862; his campaign of Vicksburg had been marked by the same excellent combinations; clear, precise orders, perfect comprehension of topographical details and strategic relation of important points. Bragg blundered as badly as Pemberton, but if the incompetency of the enemy shall be pleaded to belittle Grant's fame what will be left of the laurels Lee gathered from McClellan, sitting astride the Chickahominy; or at Antietam, marching like a turtle and fighting like a man who keeps one hand in his pocket and strikes with the other until it is tired, instead of letting fly with both hands at the face and flanks of the enemy? What would be left of the laurels Lee gathered from Burnside, butting the heights at Fredericksburg; from Hooker, dazed at Chancellorsville; from Meade, whom he defied and baffled for five months after Gettysburg? If anybody will take the trouble to read the Confederate Gen. McLaw's recent lecture on the Antietam campaign, delivered in Boston, he will understand that McClellan was neither an able tactician nor strategist; that Lee knew it, and therefore dared to do things under his nose that ought to have made his military destruction absolutely certain. But Lee never trifled with Grant; he knew he was too sagacious, vigilant, energetic and pugnacious to fool with as he did with McClellan, Hooker and Meade. The great Russian general, Bagration, knew nothing of the sciences of grand tactics or strategy, except what he learned from his own experience and reflection, and Grant to this extent was a man of military genius; he was not as fine a military scholar as any of his predecessors or his subordinates, but he was a far more daring soldier and comprehensive military commander.

Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, in a recent address in Boston on "Fort Sumter," said that after South Carolina seceded, the greatest lawyer of the state, James L. Pettigrew, when his minister first dropped from the service the prayer for the president of the United States, rose in his pew in the middle aisle of Charleston's most fashionable church, and slowly and with distinct voice repeated: "Most humbly and heartily we beseech Thee with thy favor to behold and bless thy servant, the president of these United States." Then, placing his prayer book in the rack and drawing his wife's arm within his own, he left the church, nor entered it again until his body was borne there for burial. His fellow-citizens respected his sincerity and never molested him, and when finally Charleston was occupied, the Federal commander received "an order from President Lincoln to find the widow and family of Mr. Pettigrew and minister to their wants so far as was in our power." Of the only other outspoken Unionist in Charleston when South Carolina seceded, Gen. Woodford spoke as follows:

> "And one other there was, whose name is not on the world's broad tongue," a man of the lower walk in life, of moderate means, an Irishman by birth, but an American by oath and a loyalist by love, who, standing in a salesroom when the auctioneer, after knocking down odd lots of dry goods and remnants, picked up an American flag and cast it down with the contemptuous remark that he would not ask a bid for that useless rag, spoke up and said: "I bid for it $10," and elbowing his way through the astonished crowd, took up the flag, paid his bid and bore it off. Four years afterward that flag was given to the Federal commander of the city and floated over my headquarters so long as I remained in command.
> Brave, loyal Tom Hogan, probably no one in this brilliant audience has ever heard his name, but as first I took him by the hand and looked into his honest, silent face, for he was as reticent as Grant, I felt that I met and knew a man.

Galusha A. Grow presents himself as a candidate for the United States senate from Pennsylvania. Grow was a member of congress before the war, and once speaker of the house. Gen. Barksdale, of Mississippi, who was killed at the head of his brigade at Gettysburg, once, had a scuffle on the floor of the house with Grow, but it ended in general laughter, for Barksdale's wig came off and he retired in confusion for repairs. Grow's frank presentment of himself as a candidate is commendable. There is no good reason why a man should not be as simple and frank and above board in his announcement that he is a candidate for a political office as he is when he announces himself as ready and anxious to be trusted as a lawyer, a doctor, a minister or a railroad superintendent. Politics is one of the many forms of the public business of the world, and no cheaper cant was ever uttered than the stale cry that "the office should seek the man and not the man the office."

Vancouver, in her vote, was the third town in Washington territory at the election recently held. Her total was 926, beating Walla Walla by forty-one votes.

THE STAGE.

KATIE PUTNAM.—Says the Chicago Times of May [illegible], 1884: Miss Katie Putnam's appearance at the first presentation here of C. T. Dazey's Erma the Elf drew crowded and enthusiastic audiences at the People's all week. The play is cleverly constructed, with a good deal of brisk dialogue and good situations. Miss Putnam has a protean part in the titular role and displays her remarkable ability as an actress, introducing her singing and dancing, to the great delight of her audience.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

A SUCCESSFUL PURSUIT.—Three jack tars of the British persuasion and in a condition they considered jolly came sailing up First street about 3 o'clock yesterday morning ready for any deviltry which might come into their heads. They threw down a bulletin board at New Market theater and then started in to rip the signs off the window ledges at Gill & Co's. By this time special policeman Brannan was on their trail and being reinforced by policeman Hemline closely pursued the invaders, who nimbly retreated up First street. [illegible] the fugitives were hotly pressed and [illegible] from their line of flight up toward Third street. At the corner of Second street the pursuers were reinforced by [illegible] wooden Indian, who had hurried to their support. The trio being thus headed and seeing that the fugitive was [illegible] a spurt opened fire on them. This just put the Britishers on their mettle and they just clawed up the mud and let out for [illegible] at the top of their speed. Brannan and Hemline returned and marched back in good order, while the Indian muttering ugh — — [illegible] his belt unloosed his scalping knife [illegible] swung his glittering tomahawk [illegible] Dwyers—around his head and started in pursuit. Nothing has been heard of the Englishmen or the Indian.

A SHARK STORY EXPLODED.—The account of a sailor who fell overboard from the steamer Yaquina, singing out just as the boat reached him "A shark has got me" and then disappearing as given by the Yamhill Reporter is pronounced a fish story by a gentleman who was on the steamer at the time. He says that shortly after the Yaquina had crossed out over the bar a sailor who was busy loosening a sail fell overboard. There was no life buoy handy so a wooden grating was thrown over to him. It took some time to lower a boat, things not having been straightened out after the business of sailing and when it was in the water the crew was not [illegible]. A brawny sailor at once jumped into the sea and swam to the boat, was pulled in, seized his oar and they pulled away for the man, whose head far astern—for it took some time to check the headway of the steamer—could hardly be discerned through the flock of gulls flitting here and there in the wake of the ship. The man kept up for about forty five minutes but sank before the boat got near him. No blame is to be attached to the captain or the crew of the Yaquina, who used their best endeavors to rescue their unfortunate shipmate.

POLK COUNTY MAN MISSING.—About two weeks ago F. M. Davis, of Monmouth, Polk county, came to this city and sold a team to Goddard & Frazier for $3[illegible]. He had other business here and remained several days. The last seen of him was on Thursday night of last week at which time he was in the St. Charles hotel, where he was stopping. He wrote to his family that he would be home in a few days. Neighbors of Davis were searching this city for him yesterday. His continued absence is unaccountable. He is a man of good character and his domestic relations were pleasant. He has a wife and six children. Some time since Davis was interested in a [illegible] mine and it is possible though not probable he has gone there and that he failed to notify his family, or that his letter did not reach them. Davis is some in debt, but is not the sort of a man who would run away from them.

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN'S ASSOCIATION.—A meeting of the Portland Volunteer Firemen's association was held last night in the police court chamber. The committee appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws reported and the report was adopted with several minor changes. The objects of the association are benevolence, friendship and social intercourse. The officers of the association consist of a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer and a board of trustees to be elected annually. [illegible] cents monthly dues [illegible] cents and meetings to be held monthly. Members are to receive [illegible] benefits of $[illegible] a week and on the death of a member $[illegible] is to be contributed to defray his funeral expenses. This is to be raised by an assessment of 10 cents on each member. The association now numbers eighty members. A life membership costs $25.

NOT ON THE PROGRAMME.—During the Harvest home service at the South Portland Presbyterian church among the many evidences of abundance sat a coop of chickens. Said chickens were as serene and grave as the most dignified ones present throughout the impressive exercises until near the close of the closing prayer when a male bird set up a loud and repeated crowing to the surprise of the elders and the amusement of the [illegible] or more youngsters there present. The prayer concluded the minister with [illegible] said: "Well—children I don't blame you for laughing. The fowls thus express their joy. I know they feel [illegible] at least they have been well fed [illegible]." Thus in his happy way he smoothed over the embarrassing episode.

THE MORRISON STREET BRIDGE.—Work on the East Portland approach to the new bridge from Water street to the river progressed quite rapidly all day yesterday. The work of putting on the stringers commenced early in the morning and at noon the first plank of the roadway was laid and spiked down and the work of placing the stringers and planking continued during the day. Several wagon loads of the smaller parts of the iron work crossed over the Stark street ferry in the morning. Mr Campbell the superintendent states that it is expected the whole of the iron work will be at Portland within two weeks. He also says that the stone piers are now high enough so that there will be no danger from high water.

THANKSGIVING AT MOUNT TABOR.—In the Methodist church at Mount Tabor a splendid dinner was spread yesterday afternoon and during the evening by the ladies of the church and neighborhood. The proceeds were for the payment of expenses incurred in building an addition to the church. The feast was spread at noon and was kept up till 9 P. M., and was patronized by the people from some distance around. The table was furnished in the most bountiful style, and everything from the roast turkeys down to the home made pickles, jellies and bread and butter was of the best, and reflected credit on all engaged in providing.

COULD NOT COME HOME.—R. A. Caples, familiarly known to his Portland friends as "Bob," is now in San Francisco and is doing well. He is engaged on the reportorial force of the Alta and occupies his spare time in studying law with [illegible] Haft. Bob was expected up here to spend Thanksgiving with relatives and friends, but circumstances did not permit of his coming so instead sent the following telegram to his father, John F. Caples: "Thanksgiving greeting, a long letter explains absence from home." It is expected he will be able to make his proposed visit a little later in the season.

ROADSTERS' DRIVING CLUB.—Pursuant to a previous call some twenty odd gentlemen met in the Rural Spirit office in this city yesterday at 10:30 A. M. for the purpose of organizing a Portland Roadster Driving club. Mr. T. J. Mann was made chairman and R. M. Wilber secretary. After a general exchange of opinions it was ordered that the meeting adjourn to meet Saturday, December 4, at [illegible] P. M. in the council chamber, at which time it is expected that a permanent organization will be perfected. A general invitation for all who are interested was extended to attend the call meeting.

INCORPORATED.—The following articles of incorporation have recently been filed in the office of the secretary of state: Ashland Coal company; incorporators, George M. Willard, George F. Yo[illegible], [illegible], J. W. Barnes, M. N. Long, M. A. [illegible], E. C. Carter, S. T. Carter; capital stock [illegible]. Placer City Placer Mining company; incorporators, Z. A. Tuck, C. W. Tootle, C. W. Dressler, G. W. Lumley, W. D. Hendricks; capital stock $[illegible]. The [illegible] incorporators [illegible] W. F. [illegible], J. J. Watson [illegible]; capital stock $5,000.

THE KELLY HOMICIDE VERDICT.—[illegible] the jury in the Kelly Highfield case stood on the first ballot five for $5,000, five for $10,000, one for $15,000 and one for $1000. After [illegible] the verdict [illegible] twelve [illegible] $[illegible] the $1000 man [illegible] than $5000 [illegible] on the division [illegible]

FOR BOYS.—The boys' branch of the Young Men's Christian association will meet this evening for the purpose [illegible] entertainment to be given in the hall [illegible] Admission by ticket which may be [illegible] without cost of any [illegible] or at the rooms of the association. The entertainment commences promptly at 7 o'clock [illegible] consists of selections by an amateur orchestra, recitations and an exhibition of stereopticon views. The regular meeting of the boys is on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.—Yesterday afternoon James W. Beakey steward of the Arlington club was driving down Third street in a cart when one part of the harness gave way and the breeching fell upon the horse's heels and made him jump. Mr Beakey was thrown heavily to the street and was very severely injured, though probably not permanently. He was carried to Noppach's drug store, where he received attention and was then conveyed to his home.

CONTRACT AWARDED.—The bids for supplying the state of Oregon with stationery for the ensuing session of the legislative assembly were opened by the secretary of state on Wednesday last and the contract awarded to Dittenhoefer & Haas of this city, their bid being $8[illegible]. The other bids were as follows: McKercher & Thompson $1173.18; W. B. Allen $1193.64; F. L. Johnson $[illegible]; J. J. Dalrymple $1088.43; Daniel J. F. Fry $[illegible].

NEW MILITIA COMPANY.—Governor Moody has just issued military commissions to Charles L. Morgan captain, W. H. Sharp first lieutenant and George H. Bennett second lieutenant of Company C, First regiment, Third brigade, O. N. G., with headquarters at The Dalles. Capt. Morgan was in command of Company F of this city. He has seen service in the field and is a thorough tactician and disciplinarian.

FOOT RACE ARRANGED.—Articles of agreement were yesterday drawn up for a 75 yard foot race for $250 a side between Frank Lewis of Corvallis, champion sprinter of the Pacific coast, and Wm. Boyd of Woodstock, Canada, also a noted runner. The race is to take place at The Oaks or City View park Sunday, December 5. A forfeit of $[illegible] has been posted with Frank Lynch, stakeholder.

TO BE SENT EAST.—Last evening a dispatch was received in this city by Capt. C. L. Barnett, informing him of the death of Major Taylor at Vancouver and requesting that a skillful embalmer be sent over on the Cascades boat this morning to embalm the remains which will be sent East. Instructions to that effect were given to undertaker A. P. DeLin.

RANGE DRAWING.—The number drawn yesterday at Deal & Reilly's was 6100, and the fortunate possessor of the coupon is Mrs. Wm. Grubbs, of Forest Grove.

FATAL BURNING.—A report was received here yesterday that Lizzie Wise, a girl 14 years of age, whose father formerly kept a grocery store at Sixth and Harrison streets, was fatally burned Wednesday about fourteen miles from Oregon City where her parents now reside. There was a bottle of gunpowder in the house which had been used as medicine for stock. The same bottle was brought into use as a candlestick and it exploded while it was in the girl's hand, setting fire to her clothes. Her parents [illegible] were severely burned in efforts to extinguish the flames.

THANKSGIVING IN SOUTH PORTLAND.

The Fourth Presbyterian church held most interesting and impressive exercises yesterday in their cozy chapel on First street. The room was beautifully decorated with evergreens and flowers and in front of and on either side of the pulpit were bountiful displays of the products of the land for the use of both man and beast in the cereals, vegetables, fish [illegible] domestic fowls all tastefully arranged by the [illegible] active women of the society. On the [illegible] to the rear of the platform was written in plain bold hand—

O give thanks to the Lord,
For he is good
For his mercy endureth forever.

The room was full to overflowing of the children of the mission Sunday school and members of the congregation and visitors.

After singing "Coronation" with unanimous earnestness, Mr Lee leading and Prof Smith presiding at the instrument, Mr Boyd read a part of the fourth chapter of Philippians which was followed by gospel hymn No. 40—"Bringing in the Sheaves," "We shall come rejoicing, bringing in the sheaves." His text was from Deuteronomy xi. 11 and 12, "It is a land of hills and valleys and drinketh water of the rain of heaven. A land which the Lord thy God careth for. The eyes of the Lord thy God are always upon it from the beginning of the year even unto the end of the year."

An excellent discourse was closed with the following language: "God was the strength of our fathers in all the hours. The promise to you and your children is written, not only in the [illegible] but in national character. The covenant blessing is written even on the map of the world. Civilization, which is only a name for secular Christianity, has never gone eastward but westward. Christian civilization has always traveled between the two great isothermal lines. Greece, Rome, Holland, Germany, England, the United States all lie between the same lines. It has God's endorsement. Paul essayed to go to Bithynia but the spirit suffered him not. So here is our place of thanksgiving, on this furthest verge of our great nation. We are here [illegible] from wood and glen, from field and mead [illegible] for which we give to our Father the gratitude of thankful hearts. Not only do we give him thanks for [illegible] and business prosperity and health preserved but we thank him that [illegible] the living. That these [illegible] first to the great national heart to be heeded—we think [illegible] that this national heart when [illegible] be as true to him and to the right, as it did in the days of our fathers."

After dismissal every child and many older ones were supplied bountifully with candies, nuts, pop corn and fruit from the abundant store and the residue was distributed where it was believed it would do most good.

It may not be generally known that this Presbyterian mission work was only inaugurated in June upon ground which had been occupied for about a year by a mission Sunday school under the able management of Messrs Morey and Higgens. Both school and preaching services are well patronized and much good is resulting from the work.

THE EAST SIDE.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN EAST PORTLAND.

Thanksgiving day in this city passed off very quietly, no drunkenness or disorderly conduct being seen upon the streets through the entire day. Religious services appropriate to the day were held in St. David's Episcopal church, commencing at 10:30 o'clock A. M. The church was very handsomely decorated with flowers, sheaves of different kinds of grain, fruits and vegetables indicative of peace and plenty. The following was the programme of the service:

Anthem, by a double quartette choir, "It is a good thing to give thanks."
Prayers
Thanksgiving chant (Tallis) choir
Reading first lesson
Benedicite Oxford chant choir
Reading second lesson
Jubilate (Robinson) choir
Prayers
Hymn 301, "Raise the song of Harvest Home," choir and congregation
Reading of the epistle and gospel
Hymn [illegible], "Come ye Thankful People," choir and congregation

The sermon by the rector Rev John W. Sellwood was from the text found in First Timothy vi. 8—"Having food and raiment let us therewith be content." The discourse was in all respects appropriate to the occasion and was listened to with evident pleasure by the congregation. The offering at the close was for the Good Samaritan hospital. After it had been taken the doxology was sung by the congregation and the benediction was pronounced.

The Union Thanksgiving service at the Presbyterian church was attended by a large congregation. The church was neatly decorated with flowers and evergreens. The music under the direction of Mr Fred Coffin is said to have been very fine. The pastor, Rev D. O. Ghormley, Rev Daniel Staver of the Congregational church, Rev J. W. Daniels of the Baptist church and Rev I. D. Driver of the Methodist church assisted in the services. The last named preached an excellent sermon from the thirty-third psalm and twelfth verse—"Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord and the people whom he hath chosen for his own inheritance." The discourse is said to have been one of great excellence and very appropriate to the occasion. The collection at the close was for the Ladies' Relief society and amounted to $11.

COMPANY F'S ANNUAL BALL.

The annual ball of Company F, O. N. G., was given at Armory hall on Thanksgiving Eve. The hall, which has been neatly kalsomined, was decorated in a most artistic manner with flags, evergreens and flowers and brilliantly lighted. The attendance was not quite as large as anticipated, still there was a goodly number present. The music was excellent and everything passed off most pleasantly.

NOTES.

Mrs F. Dunning leaves this morning for Salem where she goes to visit the bedside of her cousin, Mrs I. McF[illegible], who is lying seriously ill at her residence in that city.

MORAN RETICENT.

An OREGONIAN reporter interviewed Dan Moran yesterday afternoon, but couldn't get much out of him. Moran started in by saying, "I have been bored enough already by the papers and I don't care to make any statement. My lawyer told me not to talk any to reporters about the case, and I must do as my lawyer tells me."

"Well Moran, a man in your [illegible] a little retort [illegible] How about your [illegible]. That doesn't [illegible] affect your case."

"Maybe not, but I don't care to say anything about it."

"Is it true you had [illegible] a vessel at Astoria and intending to ship on her [illegible] were being searched you were afraid of being overhauled at Astoria?"

"Well yes, I—well my attorney told me not to talk to people."

"Have any of your friends been to see you?"

"No."

"Any of Kelly's friends? Don't you think they ought to help you out. You did him a good [illegible]."

"No, none [illegible] have called."

"Then you don't care to make any statement?"

"No."

"Nor whom [illegible] interested in your case?"

"No. I don't care to make any statement why I went away or how I got away. My attorney told me not to [illegible] and I won't."

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC TERMINUS.

PORT MOODY, B. C., Nov 25.—A counter petition is being circulated for signatures by those opposed to [illegible] at present.

The Nova Scotia bark [illegible], with about 1300 tons of tea from Yokohama, arrived yesterday. This is the sixth cargo of tea that the Canadian Pacific has received this season and another vessel is en route to Port Moody.

At the coming session of parliament it will be definitely decided whether the C. P. R. will be continued down to Vancouver or not. The matter has gone through the courts and now if a charter is refused by the government for the extension Port Moody will remain the terminus. The best informed believe that a charter will not be granted, as the dominion government selected Port Moody as the terminus and so emphatically and repeatedly declared. It is expected that therefore a charter will be refused and that next spring will see the commencement of lively times and a big growth here.

Taylor Bros. & Cowderoy have opened a general store.

The repairs to the railway wharf and the driving of iron piles have been completed by [illegible] & Co.

There was a large excursion here from New Westminster on Thursday, the Canadian Thanksgiving day.

RETURN OF THE McGIBENYS.

A Crowded House and a Cordial Reception at the New Market.

Certainly the reception that greeted the McGibeny family at the New Market last evening after an absence of eleven years, must have caused them many a thrill of satisfaction. [illegible] The house was literally packed and the most liberal applause was bestowed on the several performers. This is indeed a remarkable family [illegible] Mr and Mrs McGibeny. Last night's programme was well rendered in every part. The playing of the [illegible] by Mr Hugh McGibeny being the hit of the evening, [illegible] shows a remarkable degree of skill [illegible] in his instrument. [illegible] The string quartet [illegible] from Handel by Viola, Hugh, Alice and Victor was a masterpiece of harmony and [illegible] with a delicacy and expression that was truly artistic. The vocal selections, though of a simple character, were all well and harmoniously given. The duet "Where is My Little One" by Mrs McGibeny and [illegible] evoking considerable amusement from the precocity of the little one. The younger members of the family, Florence, Dollie, Grace, Carl, [illegible] and Leo all contributed not a little to the success of the entertainment [illegible] To-night and to-morrow matinee [illegible] the last opportunities of enjoying these [illegible] performances.

SOME FACTS ABOUT THE DOCTORS.

PORTLAND, Nov [illegible].

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

As I have for some time been receiving letters from friends in different parts of Oregon and Washington territory who are afflicted with paralysis or other chronic and incurable diseases, asking me if I would advise them to come and see The Wonderful Woman and whether she was a humbug or not, saying that they hear that she opens the eyes of the blind, unstops the ears of the deaf, and makes those who have rheumatism and paralysis walk and leap, I have written them that the stories were stretched, to say the least, and for them to stay at home and save their money until I hunted up some of these alleged cures and that I would then give them the facts as I found them and here they are.

I would not for my life do the Doctors [illegible] injustice, and will say to begin with that they can pull more teeth out in a minute than any dentist I ever saw. As my teeth were all good I can not say from actual experience that it hurts when they jerk a tooth out, but there is an old adage that "Children will tell the truth," and when I saw the doctors pull teeth for a child and it kicked and yelled I concluded that it hurt. Colonel Jo Teal tells of a rich old fellow who he saw get into the Golden Chariot to have his teeth extracted without pain. When he came down Colonel Teal stepped up and said "I say, —— did it hurt?" The old fellow said "You bet your life Colonel, I never was hurt so bad in my life but it didn't cost anything."

The doctors (?) have [illegible] but as to the cure of paralysis I have failed to find one whom they have cured. I first visited the residence of Joseph Limberty, No. [illegible] street. Mrs Limberty showed me her son, a bright lad about 10 years old. She says he is not cured, that he could always walk on his [illegible] and that she calls the doctors humbugs.

I next visited Mrs Louise [illegible], [illegible] street corner of Mill. She has a little boy [illegible] years old, paralyzed from his hip down, whom the doctors have been treating. He is no better and she calls them humbugs.

I then hunted up Mr James Driscoll, [illegible] of the steamer [illegible], who resides on [illegible] North [illegible] street. He has two little sons [illegible] one is deaf and the other is paralyzed [illegible]. Neither of the children is helped and Mr D. has just been hunting for the "doctors" [illegible]

I next went to Albina to find Mrs Ryan, the woman the half of whose body was paralyzed, who was cured in a few moments in the golden chariot [illegible]. As I had seen this miracle performed on the street with my own eyes I was particularly anxious to investigate. Her name is Ellen Ryan and she lives near the school house in Albina. The cure was as follows: The woman got into the chariot and the interpreter stated to the immense crowd present that this woman had one half of her body paralyzed, she was blind in one eye, deaf in one ear, one half of her tongue was useless, one arm and one leg were of no use to the patient, the proof of which was given by holding up the arm and with the hand hanging down it was shown to be as limber as a rag. "Now," said the doctor, "we will cure this woman with the Three Great Egyptian Remedies." She then had a shawl held up before her to shut out the gaze of the crowd and [illegible] twenty minutes the woman got up, [illegible] and then walked off. [illegible] that all the cures were [illegible]

When I visited Mrs Ryan yesterday she answered the door bell herself so I thought surely here is one case cured, but Mrs R. informed me that the doctors lied to the people; that she could see, hear, talk, use her arm and walk [illegible] after she had been rubbed with [illegible] salve and that she was not helped in the least. This was one of the most miraculous cases and I believe is a fair specimen of all the others. I [illegible] diligently one blind person who has been restored to sight. There may be some but I could not find any.

[illegible] Edward Chapman, who resides with his [illegible] at Pleasant Hill, but is now at his grandfather's [illegible] East Portland, came to town and [illegible] to get an interview with the "doctors." Mr Chapman is [illegible] years old, has been blind since [illegible] and can only tell the difference between light and dark. I went to Mr Chapman [illegible] hotel where the doctors were stopping and asked for the doctors. Mr C. informed me that by paying $5 he could see the doctor. I paid the $5, got my ticket, [illegible] Mr C. up and the doctors looked wise, gave him something to put in his eyes and told us to come back in ten days and they would wager their heads that they would make him see out of one eye. In ten days they were gone [illegible] and I still [illegible] blind [illegible]. Mr Calhoun tells me they will be back on the 1st of December but I [illegible]

I recently had a letter from Sam Stroud of The Dalles (everybody in Wasco county knows Sam) and he says he did not have money [illegible] to pay them for the treatment [illegible]. They were to send him the remedies [illegible] to The Dalles by express C. O. D. [illegible] they did not send it. [illegible] I advised [illegible] to save his money and wait until I had [illegible] treated.

A poor woman of The Dalles has written [illegible] borrowing money to bring a child here who has a crooked [illegible] and to-day I hear that a poor old palsied man [illegible] thirty miles [illegible] The Dalles [illegible] given in hopes that [illegible] suffering people may stay at home and save the money they have and not spend it running after [illegible] who spring up like a mushroom in a night and [illegible] the people's [illegible] as quickly.

HENRY GEORGE'S PARTY.

Proposed Organization of a National Labor Movement.

They will Enter the Race in 1888—An Interview with Father McGlynn—He Tells what the Labor Men Want.

New York Paper.

Prominent among a number of clergymen who indorsed the George movement and threw themselves heartily into the late campaign for the "people's candidate," in this city, was Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn, pastor of St. Stephen's Catholic church, East Twenty-ninth street. Wishing to know the reasons of Father McGlynn for supporting the new movement which its followers now claim is to develop into a great national labor party, and which they say will nominate candidates for every office, state or national, within the gift of the people, in the great contest of 1888, a Voice reporter called at the pastor's residence, No. 142 East Twenty-ninth street, last Saturday. Father McGlynn was not at home, but a search found him at the publication house of Henry George & Co., No. 18 Astor Place, in consultation with a number of representative labor men, including Mr. George himself.

"My reasons for supporting Mr. George in the late canvass," said Father McGlynn in answer to a question by the reporter, "were manifold. First of all, on account of my deep enthusiasm, earnest conviction, and intense belief in the platform and principles of the party which nominated him. The platform," he continued, "was not only expressive of the convictions of the men who adopted it, but was peculiarly an expression in brief of the principles which have been declared and enunciated by Mr. George in his famous works, so that the platform seemed to demand the man as its necessary exponent and complement. This leads me to say that I know of no other living man even upon the very same platform who could have enlisted so enthusiastic a support of mine."

"An impression prevails among certain classes that the vote for Mr. George was largely a blind protest by the laboring men against long continued and numerous abuses in social and political affairs, but that the laboring men have no very definite idea of what they want or how to get it," said the reporter.

"The impression is absolutely erroneous," continued Father McGlynn. "The working people have been educating themselves far more than the public is aware of. They have been reading and discussing, and have a very clear idea of what they want, and have enunciated in their platform a declaration of their principles. They are not to be classed with dynamiters, anarchists or even socialists. They all believe almost religiously in the right of property; they also believe they are largely robbed of the property which belongs to them by the clearest of titles—that is, by their having earned it by their labor—by existing unjust social and political arrangements. They believe not only that labor but capital should have its just reward; that both are entitled to their fair earnings. But they believe that capital and, most of all, labor, are thwarted, throttled and robbed by monopolies, in the products of industry, such as corners in grain, etc.; still more by monopolies in things which by their nature are more or less communal property, and which things can only exist by the exercise by the state of the right of eminent domain, or by the will of the community at large. By these I mean railroads, telegraphs, the post-offices, etc. They believe that such things should, therefore be absolutely owned by the state, or so strictly controlled that the owners of them shall get only a fair interest from the capital invested, and nothing more, unless it be fair wages for such services as they personally render.

"Most of all, the monopoly which crushes labor and the greater part of capital, and against which united labor moves and most earnestly protests, is the monopoly of the general bounties of nature, which are not created or destroyed by human industry or human endeavor. Such is the land, distinct from labor and capital. This term land includes water fronts, water-powers, fisheries, mines, and whatever is the bounty of nature to man, and not the products of his industry.

"The labor platform sets forth in the clearest language the practical remedy, which is to be adopted by appropriate legislation or constitutional amendments. It is no less than confiscating, under the name of a tax, the whole rental value of such things, which will be equivalent to abolishing private ownership, while permitting the undisturbed and perfect possession of the owner, on the sole condition that he pay each year, or each half-year, to the state as a tax, the fairly appraised amount for which the land itself would rent."

"Is it probable that the present movement inaugurated by Mr. George will develop into a national labor party?"

"It is our firm conviction and earnest resolve that this movement shall develop into a national party. Practical steps are now being taken towards that very end. A committee was appointed at the last meeting addressed by Mr. George in Cooper union, which is now preparing documents to be sent to all the labor organizations in the country. Its headquarters are in room No. 28 at Cooper union. It has selected a permanent managing secretary, Mr. Gaybert Barnes, who is the brother-in-law of that famous temperance reformer, Mr. Axel Gustafson. This committee is taking steps to have clubs formed all over the country, looking to a great national conference. They are fully determined to organize a thorough political party in every state of the union. Already we are preparing to nominate candidates to be elected this spring to the convention to revise the constitution of this state, and Mr. George and others will soon be stumping the state in their interest. We shall go into the next presidential canvass with a complete national party and candidates, on substantially the same platform as adopted by the labor party in this city at the late election. We shall be a political organization similar to the old parties, yet adopting enlightened methods of campaign work. We are eternally opposed to any debauchery of the suffrage by the buying or selling of votes, or the terrorizing and deceiving of voters. We shall improve on the old methods. We have already in the last campaign introduced musical festivals, with singing, and with ladies in attendance, and where the people came together to talk over intelligently all the questions affecting their interests."

"Have you any idea who will be the prominent labor candidates in the next presidential campaign?"

"There can be but one possible labor candidate for the presidency in 1888, and his name is Henry George. Already all over the country clubs are being formed in his interest and bearing his name."

"If your party came into power to-day, what specific legislation would you attempt? What are the first steps you would take to bring about the reforms you advocate?"

"We would at once pass laws taxing the land at its full rental value. We should ask that the state demand in taxes just the amount for which the land itself would rent."

"How would that benefit the poor man who owns a single house and lot in this city?"

"To this we say, how can a man be poor who owns a home in this city? Such a course, as Mr. George has beautifully proven in his works, would benefit every small land-owner, and raise the wages of every laboring man. The burden would fall only on the large land-owners who have more than they themselves can use and who rent the land to others or allow it to stand idle."

"How about the farmers?"

"The farmers are largely laboring men. They are not landlords. By simply taxing them the value of the ground rent, they would be relieved from the vast burden of indirect taxation which they now bear on their implements, food, clothing, the extra cost they pay in transportation on account of the tax on the materials of railroads, etc. Large numbers of them are already paying under the name of interest on mortgages, a high rent, even more than the tax of the rental value of their land. Such a course would enhance wages to their highest possible extent, make impossible such a thing as over supply of labor, by causing capital now lying idle in land to be invested in the products of labor, factories, houses, etc. It would solve the tenement house problem, cheapen the rent of buildings, and at the same time make it profitable for capital to be invested in such things rather than land. It would make it possible for every person on Manhattan island to have a comfortable home at a fair nominal rent.

"In the next place we should demand the speedy ownership by the state of all the railroads, telegraphs, etc. There is nothing revolutionary in this idea. Already in Germany, Belgium, and partly in France and England these things are owned by the state. There is no reason why the people should not have the advantage of cheap and competent government service in these directions as well as in the postoffice. Our plans perfected would rid men of the fear of poverty, which to-day is the cause of a large share of the evils affecting us."

"What position will your party take on the temperance question?"

"We believe that three-fourths of the intemperance is due to the depressing physical, mental and moral conditions, consequent on the dreary surroundings, insufficiently nourished and excessive toil, and the inability to find employment at all. We do not think the labor party is prepared at present, or is likely in the near future, to get beyond such moderate restriction of the saloons as the interest of what is called good police regulation demands. The tendency, however, of our party will be to restrain the political influences of the saloons. We deprecate the influence in the spirit of the Knights of Labor which already exclude saloon keepers from membership, and is their professed ... [illegible] ... the interests of temperance."

"What, in your judgment, Father McGlynn, should be the attitude of the clergy toward all these reforms of the ... [illegible]"

"That is a question ... [illegible] ... fit for himself. Of course, it would ... [illegible] ... Paul says, ... [illegible] ... that my ... [illegible] ... back to God and to make them better ... [illegible] ... them to believe in the ... [illegible] ... fatherhood of God."

Mr. George further denied that the saloon interest had been favorable to his campaign. "Their influence was almost to a man against me," he said. "Those who supported me were exceptions."

Satisfactory Evidence.

J. W. Graham, Wholesale Druggist, of Austin, Texas, writes: "I have been handling DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS for the past year, and have found it one of the most salable medicines I have ever had in my house for coughs, colds and even consumption, always giving entire satisfaction. Please send me another gross."

FREIGHTS—The Carmmoney, from. came in last Thursday seeking. A small fleet must be near at hand and quite a list of arrivals may be looked for the coming week. The Adele, John Gambles, Parthia, Zimora and Abercarne have sailed, and several others are about ready. Additions to the en route list are mostly of vessels that have been mentioned as headed this way for some time past. Others may soon be added. The spot market has ruled inactive, owners holding views quite above those entertained by shippers. The question for iron remains 37s 6d for orders, or fully 10s above San Francisco, and it is expected that some tonnage will be drawn here from that port.

WHEAT—Receipts for the week 1021 tons valley and 6782 tons Walla Walla, against 1771 and 5841 tons the same week last year and 1401 and 7817 tons the preceding week this year. Shipments to San Francisco are light and mostly off grades. The foreign movement is quite active. Cables during the week have all along been of firming and rather higher markets but the actual advance has not been what would be wished for. The foreign markets still occupy a position where enhanced views of sellers very promptly check business, and during the present turn such is been the case, although to a less limited extent than heretofore the present season. The rise has seemingly been based upon healthful influences, such as supplies being lighter than looked for, and a general belief that the statistical position as frequently presented, is worthy of attention. While private cables have not fully borne out public advices, they have been of a very assuring character, at least until near the close. It is still probably impossible to sell promptly at public quotations, but there is a request for cargoes very close to quotations, and this coast has done a fair business the past week. The English farmer continues to deliver sparingly, it being stated that since September 1 the delivery has been nearly half a million quarters less than for a similar period last year. United Kingdom imports are less than a year ago, but larger last week than the preceding week. The quantity afloat keeps very even, a decrease in that for the United Kingdom of 50,000 qrs being noted in the week, and an increase of 20,000 qrs in that for the continent during the same time. The American visible increased 1,222,000 bushels in a week but the figures excite no comment, as they were looked for. New York and Chicago have not fully followed the foreign markets, an increase in Atlantic freights and a strong bear influence serving to keep prices down. No doubt a lively deal may be looked for on this side should operators once become imbued with the idea that the markets will stand a rise. San Francisco has advanced under the strong pressure but holders are realizing freely at the high prices now prevailing there. With us the market has feebly responded to advices, an advance of all of 2½c being chronicled in the week. Last sales have been at $1 17@1 17½ for Walla Walla and $1 25@$1 27½ for valley, the extremes being obtainable for anything like a round parcel for two days past. Walla Walla might do even better and $1 20 is named as possible by some. Certainly sellers are demanding more money.

The following is a comparative statement of grain deliveries from English farmers, imports into the United Kingdom and quantities afloat for the weeks ended as below:

FARMERS' DELIVERIES.

November 20, 1886	45,000 to 50,000 qrs. wheat
November 21, 1885	55,000 to 60,000 qrs. wheat
November 13, 1886	45,000 to 50,000 qrs. wheat
November 14, 1885	50,000 to 65,000 qrs. wheat

IMPORTS.

November 20, 1886	215,000 to 240,000 qrs. wheat 200,000 to 205,000 bbls. flour
November 21, 1885	250,000 to 255,000 qrs. wheat 145,000 to 150,000 bbls. flour
November 13, 1886	145,000 to 150,000 qrs. wheat 160,000 to 165,000 bbls. flour
November 14, 1885	260,000 to 265,000 qrs. wheat 145,000 to 150,000 bbls. flour

QUANTITIES AFLOAT.

November 21, 1886	1,825,000 qrs. for U. K. 250,000 qrs. for Con't.
November 20, 1885	1,775,000 qrs. for U. K. 230,000 qrs. for Con't.
November 17, 1886	1,875,000 qrs. for U. K. 330,000 qrs. for Con't.
November 19, 1885	1,680,000 qrs. for U. K. 210,000 qrs. for Con't.

FLOUR—Receipts for the week 6730 bbls valley and 4000 bbls Walla Walla, less coming for foreign shipment. The upward turn in wheat has greatly strengthened flour, and an advance on $2 70@3 75 has been asked in some directions. Should wheat keep firm an early advance in flour is certain, and is already refusing to book large orders at old prices. An advance now would probably be of 10c per barrel. Demands have lately increased because of this threatened advance. The Br bark Andes has cleared hence with a cargo and the Dunpore, Henry James and Don sailed during the month. The John Gambles took part cargo.

Minneapolis dates of 17th inst. report the week's production of flour to have been 151,100 bbls, a slight gain over the preceding week by the nineteen mills. Severe weather then curtailed the water power, and two mills began work with steam. One miller spoken to said that with the flour market in its present condition he could not afford to use steam. The flour production must fall away with the less water.

MILLSTUFF—Very firm under ruling conditions, and agents are inclined to ask more money. Stocks are light and the demand is good, both here and in the interior. We quote jobbing values: Bran $15, chop $17, shorts $17. Ground barley sells at $24, and oil meal at $32 50.

GREEN FRUIT—Apples in large movement during the week, but falling off at the close. Shipments in all directions free, the steamer of the 20th having about 8500 boxes and the one of to-day 2500 boxes. Toward San Francisco the movement has not been so active in years. It is very probable that the great bulk of the crop has been marketed by this time, but that the trade will be of good proportions for some time yet. The quotation for good to choice is 40@60c, choice eating qualities often doing better. Pears nominal at about 75c.

EGGS—Light arrivals until Tuesday, when the evident prospect of a better price brought in quite a supply. Some sold up to 35c on Tuesday evening and on Wednesday evening this figure was generally obtained. Very few eastern in during the week. To-day 32½c is quoted, but 35c is all that can be expected.

BUTTER—Pickle roll from California selling at 25c. Good grades of local roll sell at 25@27½c, except for choice asked for choice. Store butter ... [illegible]

Catarrh
Is a complaint that affects nearly everybody, more or less. It originates in impure blood, and is aggravated by taking cold. Disagreeable flow from the nose, tickling in the throat, offensive breath, pain over and between the eyes, ringing and bursting noises in the ears, are the more common symptoms. Catarrh is cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strikes directly at the cause by removing all impurities from the blood.

"I had catarrh nine years, and suffered terribly with it. Soon after I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla the catarrh troubled me less, and after taking three bottles I was entirely cured." JANE BINNEY, Lamberton, Clinton County, Ohio.
"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh and think it has done me a great deal of good. I recommend it to all within my reach. Hood's Sarsaparilla has been worth everything to me." LUTHER D. ROBBINS, East Thompson, Ct.

"I suffered with catarrh fifteen years; tried all the catarrh remedies without benefit, and was about to try a change of climate, when I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. I would not take any money consideration for the good one bottle did me. Now I am not troubled any with catarrh." J. W. LILLIS, Chicago, Ill.

Impure Blood

Cancer of the Tongue.
My wife, some three or four years ago, was troubled with an ulcer on the side of her tongue near the throat. The pain was incessant, causing loss of sleep and producing great nervous prostration. Accompanying this trouble was rheumatism. It had passed from the shoulders and centered in the wrist of one hand, she almost losing the use of it. Between the suffering of the two, life had grown burdensome. By the use of a half dozen small sized bottles of Swift's Specific, she was entirely relieved and restored to health. This was three years ago, and there has been no return of the disease.
